

interdependent[ˌɪntərɪˈpendənt] a

взаимозависимые; зависящие друг от друга

interdependent

Oxford Advanced Learners Dictionary 8th Ed.

inter-de-pend-ent [interdependence interdependent] BrE [ˌɪntərɪˈpendənt]NAmE [ˌɪntərɪˈpendənt] adjective

that depend on each other; consisting of parts that depend on each other

- interdependent economies/organizations/relationships
- The world is becoming increasingly interdependent

Derived Word ↑interdependence

See also: ↑interdependency

interdependent

Longman DOCE 5th Ed. (En-En)

in-ter-de-pen-ident /ˌɪntərɪˈpendənt/ $ -tər-/ BrE AmE adjective

depending on or necessary to each other:

countries with interdependent economies

—interdependently adverb

• • •

THESAURUS

- related/connected adjective used about things that have a connection with each other. Connected is not used before a noun: Physics and Maths are closely related. | The two problems are connected. | homelessness and other related issues
- linked adjective having a direct connection – often used when one thing is the cause of the other: Skin cancer is directly linked to sun exposure and damage. | Two closely linked factors produced this result.
- interrelated/interconnected adjective used about two or more things that are connected with each other and affect each other in a complicated series of ways: The various parts of society are closely interrelated. | The book consists of a series of interconnected essays.
- interdependent used about two or more things, countries, people etc that depend on each other, and cannot exist or continue without each other: The two countries' economies have become increasingly interdependent. | interdependent relationships between species | Darwin said that all life on earth is interdependent.
- relevant adjective related to what is being discussed or to a particular area of activity: The exam tests the way you select and organize information relevant to the question. | Applicants should have several years' relevant experience.
- be bound up with something to be very closely connected – used about two things that need to be considered together: The history of the city has long been bound up with the sea. | Your professional development is closely bound up with personal growth.

interdependent

Freakuency Pack

12500 12332^{MCW}15000 8469^{COCA}RANGE: 12k INTERDEPENDENT 1033

interdependent 826

interdependently 13

interdependency 119

interdependencies 75

COCA 500k Unlemmatized

592 23826³²² *jj*4 443424⁴ nnu