

March

I

[mɑ:tʃ] n

март

March days - мартовские дни

◇ the Ides of March - мартовские иды (пятнадцатое марта)

to be (as) mad as a March hare - рехнуться, выжить из ума

March comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb - посл. ≅ март приходит с бурей, а уходит с тепломMarch grass never did good - посл. от ранней травы проку не будет

II

[mɑ:tʃ] n геогр.

е. Марч

March

Oxford Advanced Learners Dictionary 8th Ed.

March [March Marches] BrE [mɑːtʃ] NAme [mɑːrtʃ] noun uncountable, countable (abbr. Mar.)the 3rd month of the year, between February and April To see how March is used, look at the examples at April.see mad as a hatter/a March hare at ↑madWord Origin:Middle English: from an Old French dialect variant of marz, from Latin Martius (mensis) '(month) of Mars'.March

Longman DOCE 5th Ed. (En-En)

March BrE AmE noun [uncountable and countable] (written abbreviation Mar.)

[Date: 1200-1300; Language: Old French; Origin: Latin martius, from martius 'of Mars, god of war']

the third month of the year, between February and April

next/last March

" She started work here last March.

in March

" The theatre opened in March 2001.

on March 6th

" There's a meeting on March 6th.

on 6th March British English:

" I wrote to my bank on 6th March.

March 6 American English:

" The hospital is scheduled to open March 6.