

remorse[rɪ'mɔ:s] n

- 1) угрызения совести; раскаяние
 a feeling /a twinge/ of remorse - чувство раскаяния, угрызения совести biting remorse - мучительные угрызения совести
 to feel /to be smitten with/ remorse - испытывать угрызения совести
- 2) арх. жалость, сострадание
 without remorse - безжалостно, беспощадно, бессердечно

remorse

Oxford Advanced Learners Dictionary 8th Ed.

re-morse BrE [rɪ'mɔ:s] NAmE [rɪ'mɔ:r] noun uncountable

the feeling of being extremely sorry for sth wrong or bad that you have done

- I felt guilty and full of remorse.
- She felt no remorse at leaving them without notice.
- ~ for sth/for doing sth He was filled with remorse for not believing her.

Derived Words ↑remorseful ▪ ↑remorsefullyWord Origin:[remorse remorseful remorsefully] late Middle English: from Old French remors, from medieval Latin remorsus, from Latin remordere 'vex', from re- (expressing intensive force) + mordere 'to bite'.Example Bank:

- He died without remorse.
- He felt some remorse at his actions.
- I suffered no remorse.
- She felt a sharp pang of remorse over the incident.
- She knew that the next day she would be full of remorse.
- She was filled with remorse for the crime.

remorse

Longman DOCE 5th Ed. (En-En)

re-morse /rɪ'mɔ:s/ BrE AmE noun [uncountable]

[Date: 1300-1400; Language: Old French; Origin: remors, from Latin remordere 'to bite again']

a strong feeling of being sorry that you have done something very bad ⇒ regret:Throughout the trial, he had shown no remorse.remorse for

She felt a pang of remorse for what she had done.

be full of remorse/be filled with remorse

Filled with remorse, Dillon decided to resign.

—remorseful adjective—remorsefully adverb

• • •

THESAURUS

- guilt the feeling you have when you have done something you know is wrong: Divorce often leaves people with feelings of guilt.
- shame the feeling of being guilty or embarrassed that you have after doing something that is wrong, when you feel you have lost people's respect: I was too scared to help him, and I was filled with shame.
- regret a feeling of sadness about something, especially because you wish it had not happened: Kate watched her go with a pang of regret.
- remorse a strong feeling of being sorry for doing something very bad: a murderer who showed no remorse
- contrition formal a feeling of being guilty and sorry for something wrong that you have done: The company CEO expressed contrition for the errors that led to the crash. | He sounded full of contrition. | They wanted to perform some kind of act of contrition (=do something that shows you feel sorry for something).
- penitence formal a feeling of being sorry for something that you have done wrong, when you do not intend to do it again: He expressed genuine penitence at the harm he had done her. | a period of reflection and penitence
- conscience the part of your mind that tells you whether what you are doing is morally right or wrong: My conscience has been troubling me ever since.

remorse

Freakuency Pack

12500 8562^{MCW}15000 6498^{COCA}RANGE: 9k REMORSE 1839

remorse 1425

remorses 0

remorseless 134

remorselessness 8

remorselessly 55

remorseful 199

remorsefully 18

