

devoid[dɪˈvɔɪd] a (of)лишённый (чего-л.); свободный (от чего-л.)

devoid of pity [sense, fear] - безжалостный [бессмысленный, бесстрашный]

utterly devoid of pretension - без малейшего притворства devoid of cares - беспечный

a place totally devoid of interest - место, не представляющее ни малейшего интереса devoid of inhabitants - незаселённый devoid of malice - не замышляющий зла

devoid

Oxford Advanced Learners Dictionary 8th Ed.

de-void BrE [dɪˈvɔɪd] ^m NAmE [dɪˈvɔɪd] ^m adjective ~ of sth completely lacking in sth

- The letter was devoid of warmth and feeling.

Word Origin:[devoid] late Middle English: past participle of obsolete devoid 'cast out', from Old French devoidier.Example Bank:

- The land is almost devoid of vegetation.

devoid

Longman DOCE 5th Ed. (En-En)

de void /dɪˈvɔɪd/ BrE ^m AmE ^m adjective formal

[Date: 1300-1400; Language: Old French; Origin: desvuidier 'to empty'] be devoid of something to be completely lacking in something:

- His face was devoid of any warmth or humour.

devoid

Freakuency Pack

12500 8749^{MCW}15000 6976^{COCA}RANGE: 10k DEVOID ¹⁵⁸⁹devoid ¹⁵⁸⁹

COCA 500k Unlemmatized

¹⁴⁶⁴ 15666¹⁵⁸⁹ jj